Dear Parents,

An important criterion of the US university admission process is for students to demonstrate strong SAT scores. This standardized test is used by most American universities to determine eligibility at their institution.

Crimson Education through our Inspired partnership has created a bespoke one-month intensive online tutoring programme, so our students can be fully prepared for this important exam.

There are three tiers of offerings, which you can select depending on the number of tutoring hours you believe your child may need to be ready for the May testing date.

Please see the details of the three offerings in the following link:

At Inspired, we remain committed to providing the best-in-class tools to enhance each student's potential when navigating through the higher education landscape.

Best regards,

Mahtab Hanjani
